

think project! International think project! International, headquartered in Munich, Germany, is responsible for the global marketing and product development of think project!, an efficient information and project management solution for the construction and real estate industries.

think project! brings together all project-relevant data – from the tendering, planning and execution phases through to ongoing facilities management and maintenance – on a single platform. All project partners can access the latest information any time, any place. Regulated communication and coordination processes between project members ensure an accelerated flow of information and optimize project collaboration. By facilitating secure access to comprehensive, traceable and tamper-proof documentation, think project! makes a significant contribution to complex, multi-party projects by increasing efficiency and minimizing risks. Any process can be mapped without any programming. Standard modules are also available for a range of processes, such as design and document management, defect tracking, tendering and facilities management – and they can be combined and expanded to meet specific project requirements.

The online project collaboration and document control system think project! is successfully used in 30 countries by well-known clients, investors, project developers, project controllers, project managers, architecture and engineering firms, and construction companies. More than 3,000 projects – ranging in construction value from one million to several billion euros – have been executed with the help of think project!. 70,000 users around the world work with think project!, which is currently available in over 15 languages.

Together with its parent company, baulegis, think project! International's goal is to establish think project! as the standard platform for online project collaboration within the construction and real estate industries worldwide.
